Subject: Setup Authentication

Team,

It has come to my attention that our blog (blog.ods.com, also amarice) is currently not using Active Directory for its Authentication.

Please make the required changes to bring the blog into the fold. I want all ODS staff to use Active Directory when they login to the blog before being able to post blog entries.

Just to be clear here, you still need to allow our customers to see our posts.

Provide a quick report, no more than a page with an executive summary of the changes you needed to make and a screenshot showing an Active Directory user logging in.

Thank you.

John H.
